1. Introduction

This Code of Conduct (the "Code") applies to War Child Canada and its affiliates/subsidiaries (collectively, the "Charity").

The Charity expects its employees (whether full-time employees or consultants) and officers ("employees") and members of its Board of Directors ("directors") and volunteers ("volunteers") to conduct the Charity's business with honesty, integrity, and in compliance with all applicable laws in a manner that excludes considerations of personal advantage or gain. This Code provides a set of behavioural standards required by the Charity towards other employees, directors, volunteers, beneficiaries, partners and vendors aligned to the Charity's moral and legal Duty of Care.

Each employee, director and volunteer is expected to read this Code and demonstrate personal commitment to the standards set forth in this Code. This Code is designed to deter wrongdoing and promote:

1. Accountability to the people The Charity works with.
2. Honest and ethical conduct, including the ethical handling of actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships.
3. Compliance with applicable governmental laws, rules and regulations.
4. Professional behavioural standards including the prevention of sexual exploitation and abuse.
5. Prompt internal reporting to an appropriate person of violations of this Code.

This Code is not intended to be a detailed guide for all situations. Employees and directors are also expected to comply with other workplace rules, as applicable, all of which supplement this Code.

The Charity's moral duty of care sets standards through this Code that are intended to surpass the legal minimum requirements, given the expectation within the sector that humanitarian organisations seek to enhance their practices and provide support for employees based on the principles of "Do No Harm". This is especially important given the higher-risk localities where the Charity operates.

2. Principles of War Child Canada

All employees, directors and volunteers must conduct themselves and perform their duties in a manner consistent with the values, objectives, working principles, policies and procedures of the Charity. As representatives of the Charity, employees, directors and volunteers must avoid any actions that could reasonably be expected to adversely affect or give the appearance of adversely affecting the objectives, or public perception, of the organization. Specifically, the following three components outline the expectations towards all employees, directors and volunteers:

1) Respect, Dignity and Discrimination

- 1.1 The Charity is an independent, non-political and non-religious organization. The programs that are implemented in countries are neither political acts nor religious acts and are based upon the principles of “Do No Harm”.
- 1.2 Employees must treat all beneficiaries with dignity and respect and be sensitive to actions that could be misunderstood or appear disrespectful or intrusive, and must appropriately follow Informed Consent requirements. Employees, directors and volunteers have a duty to treat the children, families and communities we serve with dignity and respect and to ensure their safety and protection.
- 1.3 All employees, directors and volunteers must treat others with equality and dignity without regard to gender, marital status, family status, race, national or ethnic origin, colour, disability, religion, age, or sexual orientation. The Charity will not, under any circumstances, condone or tolerate any discriminatory conduct.
- 1.4 Employees should not, in carrying out their activities, discriminate between or deny participation to any ethnic or religious group.
- 1.5 The Charity affirms that assistance will not depend on the adherence of the recipients to any particular opinions or religion.

2) Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Harassment

The Charity recognises the right of all beneficiaries to be protected from sexual exploitation, abuse and harassment.

The Charity abides by the Inter-Agency Standing Committee (IASC) Minimum Operating Standards for Protection from Sexual Exploitation and Abuse for UN and non-UN staff following core principles:

- 2.1 Sexual exploitation and abuse by employees, directors or volunteers constitute acts of gross misconduct and are grounds for immediate termination of employment. The Charity has a zero tolerance approach to sexual exploitation and abuse.
- 2.2 Sexual activity with children (persons under the age of 18) is prohibited regardless of the local age of majority or age of consent. Mistaken belief in the age of a child is not a defense, as per War Child Canada’s Child Safeguarding Policy.
- 2.3 Exchange of money, employment, goods or services for sex, including sexual favors or other forms of humiliating, degrading or exploitative behavior, is prohibited. This includes exchange of assistance that is due to beneficiaries.
- 2.4 Sexual relationships between employees and beneficiaries are prohibited since they are based on inherently unequal power dynamics. Such relationships undermine the credibility and integrity of humanitarian aid work.
- 2.5 Where an employee develops concerns or suspicions regarding sexual abuse or exploitation by a fellow worker, whether employed by The Charity or not, s/he must report such concerns via established by the Charity’s reporting channels.
- 2.6 Employees are obliged to create and maintain an environment that prevents sexual exploitation and abuse and promotes the implementation of this Code. Managers at all levels have particular responsibilities to support and develop systems that maintain this environment.
- 2.7 The Charity will not, under any circumstances, condone or tolerate any employee, director or volunteer engaging in a course of harassment, whether or not of a sexual nature, such harassment being defined as (but not necessarily limited to) vexatious comments or conduct towards another employee, director or volunteer or individual otherwise affiliated with the Charity that is known or ought reasonably to be known to be unwelcome.

3) Financial Gain and Use of Assets

- 3.1 All dealings with donors and beneficiaries will reflect accountability and transparency. The Charity aims to maintain high standards of professionalism and expertise.

- 3.2 Under no circumstances will employees, directors or volunteers offer or accept financial incentives, salary or other personal favours from other parties during the period of the agreement/contract.
- 3.3 Staff will use The Charity's premises and assets with a sense of responsibility. Use of those assets in such manner that may compromise The Charity's credibility is not acceptable.
- 3.4 The Charity's employees, director or volunteers will do nothing to obstruct the transparency of our actions nor will staff do anything to better themselves in a financial or to benefit themselves improperly.
- 3.5 All employees and directors have a duty to protect the Charity's assets and ensure the assets' efficient use. These assets include intellectual property such as trademarks, patents, business and marketing plans, salary information and any unpublished data and reports. Any unauthorized use or distribution of this information is a violation of this Code.

3. Compliance with Laws, Rules and Regulations

It is The Charity's policy to comply with all applicable laws, rules and regulations. It is the personal responsibility of each employee, director and volunteer to adhere to the standards and restrictions imposed by those laws, rules and regulations in the performance of his or her duties for the Charity, including those relating to accounting and auditing matters.

4. Conflicts of Interest

Transactions or relationships that constitute a conflict of interest are prohibited as a matter of policy, unless specifically approved by the Board or an appropriate committee of the Board. A conflict of interest occurs when an individual's personal interest interferes with the interests of The Charity, or when such interest could reasonably be viewed as interfering with the interests of The Charity.

Conflicts of interest can arise when an employee, director or volunteer takes action or has interests that make it difficult to make objective decisions on behalf of The Charity or to perform his or her duties objectively and effectively. Conflicts of interest can also arise when an employee, director or volunteer, or a member of his or her family, receives improper personal benefits as a result of his or her position in the Charity.

The Charity providing loans to, or guarantees of obligations of, employees and directors and their family members are likely to create conflicts of interest and, therefore, are prohibited.

Unless approved by management, the Board or an appropriate committee of the Board, no employee or director or any member of his or her immediate family can acquire a financial interest in, or accept employment with, any entity doing business with the Charity if the interest or employment could conflict with his or her duties to the Charity and the performance of such duties. It is usually a conflict of interest for an employee to work simultaneously for another registered charity or supplier of the Charity.

Employees and directors, and their immediate family members cannot accept material gifts or favours that could create the appearance that their business judgment could be affected by the receipt of such gifts or favours.

5. Other Opportunities

Employees and directors are prohibited from taking, or directing a third party to take, a business opportunity that is discovered through the use of The Charity's property, information or position. Employees and directors cannot use Charity property, information or position for personal gain, and cannot directly or indirectly compete with the Charity. Employees and directors owe a duty to the Charity to advance the Charity's legitimate interests when the opportunity to do so arises. Employees are required to review the Charity's stand-alone Conflict of Interest Policy.

6. Confidentiality

In carrying out the Charity's business, employee, directors and volunteers often learn confidential or proprietary information about the Charity, its employees, suppliers, or joint project parties. Employees, directors and volunteers must maintain the confidentiality of all information entrusted to them, except when disclosure is authorized by the Board or an executive officer of the Charity or required by applicable laws or regulations. Confidential or proprietary information includes all non-public information that might be harmful to the Charity or its customers, if disclosed. The obligation to protect confidential information does not cease when an employee or director leaves the Charity.

7. Fair Dealing

The Charity conducts business with integrity and in an ethical manner. Each employee, director and volunteer is expected to deal fairly with our donors, vendors, employees and program partners. No employee or director shall take unfair advantage of any other person through manipulation, concealment, abuse of privileged information, misrepresentation of material facts, or any other unfair practice. The knowing or deliberate falsification of any documents or data by an employee or director may result in disciplinary action or termination, and potential civil and/or criminal penalties.

8. Accuracy of Records and Reporting

All of the Charity's books, records, accounts and financial statements must be maintained in reasonable detail, must appropriately reflect the matters to which they relate and must conform both to applicable legal requirements and to the Charity's system of internal controls. The making of false or misleading records or documentation is strictly prohibited. The Charity complies with all laws and regulations regarding the preservation of records. Records should be retained or destroyed only in accordance with the Charity's document retention policies.

9. Interaction with Public Officials

When dealing with public officials, employees and directors must avoid any activity that is or appears illegal or unethical. The giving of gifts, including in certain instances meals, entertainment, transportation and lodging, to government officials in the various branches of federal governments, as well as provincial, state and local governments, is restricted by law. The foregoing does not apply to personal lawful political contributions.

In addition, the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and the Corruption of Foreign Public Officials Act (Canada) prohibits giving anything of value, directly or indirectly, to officials of foreign governments or foreign political candidates in order to obtain or retain business or other benefits. Illegal payments to government officials of any country are strictly prohibited.

10. Anti-Terrorism

All employees and directors must ensure spending of funds in accordance with rules and regulations established by the U.S. government regarding support to individuals and organizations associated with terrorist or terrorist acts by verifying that individuals and organizations receiving funds do not appear on the U.S. government's Office of Foreign Affairs Asset Control (OFAC) list or the System of Award Management (SAM) and UN terrorist list. The list are available over the internet at: OFAC list: <http://sdnsearch.ofac.treas.gov> ; SAM list: <http://www.sam.gov/> ; UN Consolidated Sanctions List: <https://www.un.org/sc/suborg/en/sanctions/un-sc-consolidated-list>

11. Reporting

Any evidence of improper conduct, violations of laws, rules, regulations or this Code should be reported immediately to the designated officer as described below.

1. If the Reporter has information regarding actual or suspected violations, they should first report that information to a member of Senior Management.
2. If the matter occurred within The Charity's country of operation, the matter should be directed to Senior Management within the country team as per Annex 1 (as applicable).
3. Secure reporting can also be made through www.warchild.ca/securereporting

It is a violation of our policy for any employee to communicate a report claiming illegal or unethical conduct that the employee knows to be without foundation. Executive officers or members of the Charity's Board of Directors should discuss actual or suspected violations with the Board or an appropriate committee of the Board.

All individuals working for The Charity have the right to approach a higher authority about abuses of this code, whether that authority is at within The Charity's countries of operation or at Head Office. The Charity will not tolerate retaliation of any kind against employees who in good faith report suspected violations. The Charity understands the Reporter may face safety or security considerations which must be outlined when communicating to the member of Senior Management in order to take any appropriate measures.

12. Investigations and Inquiries

Suspected violations are to be reported and reported violations will be promptly investigated in an impartial and professional manner. The person reporting the violation should not conduct an investigation or inquiry on his or her own. Employees and directors are expected to cooperate fully with any investigation made by the Charity or any of its representatives. The need for confidentiality and discretion will be respected to the extent possible, recognising that in order for a matter to be properly investigated, individuals may need to be formally interviewed and further dialogue or feedback provided to the compliant.

13. Accountability

Employees and directors who violate this Code may be subject to disciplinary action, including termination of employment. Knowledge of a violation and failure to promptly report or correct the violation may also subject an employee to disciplinary action. Some violations of this Code are illegal and may subject the person engaging in the improper activity to civil and criminal liability.

I have read, understand and agree to abide by the Code. Such adherence is a condition of my employment and I understand that a violation of the code of conduct may be grounds for termination as a volunteer or in the case of an employee immediate dismissal for just cause without notice or pay in lieu of notice.
